

Boston November 15-1842.

Dear Madam

Again we have the pleasure of sending through you, to the American Anti-Slavery Society, several articles for the Fair to be held in Boston - It was our wish that they should be sent by the Mail steamer, and for that purpose, we have requested our friend R. D. Webb of Dublin to pay the freight from Liverpool to Boston (it was taken free from this town to the former place) we giving him money for the purpose - but as yet we have not heard whether <sup>if not they leave you first packet</sup> they will be taken - We feel that we have gained ground since last year - we have got several new contributors and lost one old one - Many questions are asked us, whether plain or fancy work would be preferred? little things for children or knitted or netted articles? we would be glad to hear as many would do either with equal pleasure.
In a letter to our friend C. L. Remond, a strong wish has been expressed that no persons should be alluded to by name as particularly active - some of the persons most interested being quite unknown to you - for instance, the figure of O'Connell has been dressed by Mrs. Nash who has spared no pains to make it in every respect a true copy of the original - the piece of raised work, was done by Miss Cotton - this will show that it would seem like injustice for some to be praised while others equally worthy are unnoticed - the offerings of some are to be prized as was the widow's mite - In general we have been more anxious to get a little from several people, than a great many things from any one -

We have marked the articles as you suggested - at about the prices they would sell for at a Bazaar here - perhaps you would tell us against next year whether it would be better for us to mark in pencil - or not to mark at all -

With much respect, we remain, dear Madam on the part of the Society your sincere friends -

My dear Madame

Your much prized letter of last year was unanswered by us in words - but we have not been unmindful of its contents - With regard to New England, we know nothing of it - we never hear of it amongst us - but we are endeavoring as much as possible to prepare the way for its spread down if it should appear - if the right of every one to decide for himself, be allowed we would hear less of intolerance - and few seem inclined to deny that it is a right - part of our liberty - The Standard has been taken for our Society because being less local it is more suited to our readers - We are anxious to hear how the Bazaar will proceed this year - Many sad hearts will be there - but we feel that sorrow is sacred - therefore we will only say we remain your affectionate well-wishers

Signed - For the friends of last year by Sarah Jennings.
